II. Even under optimum conditions, Vietnam government will be hard put to pose serious challenge to Viet Minh in scheduled 1956 elections.

- A. Present Diem regime, long on zeal, is short on administrative ability.
- B. Tremendous problem of rooting out corruption aggravated by Bao Dai's continued profitable association with corrupt police force.
- C. Assets in political warfare against Viet Minh, most notably issue of Chinese Communist domination latter, more than offset by Vietnamese fear French intend to remain on top in what's left of Vietnam.
